2. The School

"The school is ... the place where people can make friends, is not just about buildings, classrooms, halls, blackboards, programs, schedules, concepts ... School is all about, people, people working, studying, rejoicing, a place where people meet and love one another. The director is people, the coordinator is people, the teacher is people, the student is people, each official is people. And the school is getting better, to the extent that each behave as a partner, friend, brother. Nothing like an island where people are surrounded by fences on all sides. Nothing about living people and then find that there is no friendship with anyone. Nothing to be like the block forming the walls, indifferent, cold, alone. In school is important not only to study, not only to work, it is also a place to build friendship, to create an atmosphere of camaraderie, is to live, it is to join one another. Now, it is logical ... that in a school like that it is easy to study, work, grow, make friends, educate yourself, be happy. "Paulo Freire
